Manager Commentary

Emerging markets recorded a third consecutive month of negative returns during April but the index drawdown was less than that of February and March. Emerging EMEA was the weakest region, returning -2.3% in US dollar terms. Healthcare was the weakest sector followed by technology and financials. Materials and energy were among the sectors that recorded positive returns as commodity prices rallied.

It was a bad month for the Fund. The thorn in the portfolio's side at present is Vakrangee, the Indian consumer services group. This continues to be very volatile, primarily on the downside during April. It is proving a struggle for management to regain credibility with the market and their efforts were dealt a blow by the resignation of the company's auditor PWC. A new auditor has been appointed but we will have to wait longer than expected for the full-year audited financial statements. Unfortunately, some of the Fund's large positions also struggled, either because of an earnings disappointment or because the market reduced its expectations for future growth. This was the case for Singapore-listed Venture Corp, which provides technology products and services to a wide range of customers. Its share price fell after Philip Morris International – thought to be one of Venture's larger customers – reported a slowdown in the growth of its heated tobacco product IQOS. Subsequently, Venture reported weaker than expected first quarter revenue growth and the shares fell further. We believe that the company's capacity to deliver sustained and profitable growth over the long-term remains intact. Regarding Sinopharm, China's leading drug distributor, we were too enthusiastic about the positive impact of new regulations following the announcement of 2017 results. The introduction of the 'two-ticket' rule for healthcare products has led to a decline in first quarter 2018 profits, but we believe that this regulatory change and other factors will support Sinopharm's revenue and profit growth over coming years.

On the other side of the ledger, the Fund's two largest positions Frutarom and Samsung Electronics produced a positive return for April. For Frutarom, this was in part a reaction to bid speculation. In early May, IFF announced that it had agreed to acquire Frutarom. More on this next month. For Samsung, the shares responded positively to high levels of reported revenue and profit growth for the first quarter of 2018.

Occasionally in emerging markets, periods of volatility trigger nervous holders to reduce positions and they may find few buyers on the other side. Share prices fall, reflecting supply and demand dynamics and not necessarily underlying company fundamentals. We continue to work hard on fundamental research and believe that patience will be rewarded in the long-run.
