Manager Commentary

October was the worst month for the MSCI Emerging Markets Index (-8.7%) in what has been a difficult year-to-date (-15.7%), with negative returns in eight out of ten months. By region, Asia (-10.9%) was by far the weakest, primarily on concerns about an economic slowdown in China. Emerging EMEA (-6.8%) also continued to struggle. Latin America (+3.5%) delivered a positive return, primarily because of Bolsanaro's victory in the Brazilian Presidential election and the expectation that his administration will adopt market-friendly policies. All sectors in emerging markets declined with IT and healthcare (both -13.7%) faring the worst while the more defensive utilities sector (-1.4%) captured less of the downside.

Samsonite was the largest detractor from portfolio returns during October. Similar to the previous month, the market focused on concerns about new US tariffs imposed on products that the company manufactures in China. The share of retailer Matahari Department Store have remained under pressure because of concerns about the company's ownership and the Indonesian economy. The recently introduced share repurchase scheme should be helpful for the share price over the medium-term but it appeared to have little impact during the month. Elsewhere, our position in tequila manufacturer Becele declined after the company reported weaker profit margins because of a significant spike in agave prices. Agave sugars are the main ingredient in tequila.

The Fund's two Brazilian holdings were the biggest contributors to return over the month. Car rental company Localiza reported revenue growth in excess of 30% for the third quarter while education company Kroton benefited from enthusiasm about Brazil's future economic prospects. KFC and Pizza Hut operator Yum China ended the month on a positive note after it reported third quarter revenue and profit growth despite the challenges in China.
