Manager Commentary

Following two months of positive performance, the MSCI Emerging Markets Index was essentially flat in November (-0.1% in US dollar terms). By region, concerns over civil unrest in Chile weighed on markets in Latin America (-4.1%), whilst EMEA also struggled (-1.2%), leaving Asia as the only positive contributor (+0.5%) for the month. The two best performing sectors were consumer discretionary (+3.7%) and communication services (+1.4%), the two worst performing were utilities (-4.8%) and healthcare (-4.7%).

The month saw a return to favour for our biggest position MercadoLibre, which reversed its October dip, rising 11% during the month. Positive contributions also came from IFF, which delivered a set of well-received quarterly results and reassured on lingering investor concerns over the Frutarom acquisition, and Samsonite, a beneficiary of the positive noise surrounding a possible US-Chinese trade deal. The biggest detractors from performance came from Mexican cable operator Megacable, dragged down by the general LatAm malaise, and Sinopharm, again on concerns regarding a further profitability squeeze for the Chinese pharmaceutical sector.
