Manager Commentary

The top contributors year to date were Alphabet, Keyence and Nike.

Alphabet is a technology company increasingly entrenched in consumers' lives, with 10 assets that have over 1 billion users each. It reported organic revenue growth of 14% in Q3, with improvement in advertising spend across geographies and most verticals versus a pandemic-impaired, flat performance in Q2. Keyence's solutions for factory automation should see continued adoption driven by increasingly stringent quality requirements, employee safety regulation, ageing populations, wage inflation and demand for customisation, especially in a post-COVID era. As the number one manufacturer of athletic footwear and apparel in the world, Nike benefits from healthy lifestyles, increasing sports participation and greater "athleisure" style adoption. Its multi-year focus on the development of digital distribution places it in a powerful competitive position and allowed it to capture strong online demand for its products during the pandemic.

The top detractors year to date were Ulta Beauty, CME Group and EssilorLuxottica.

Ulta Beauty, a US specialty retailer, was sold in Q1 and, in the light of positive market moves since then, remains the top detractor year-to-date. CME Group operates a leading global derivatives exchange with unmatched product diversity and liquidity. The exceptional levels of pandemic-related market volatility across asset classes in Q1 were followed by weak trading volume in Q2 and Q3, exacerbated by the actions of the Fed and other government bodies to keep global interest rates low.

EssilorLuxottica holds a dominant market position in the optical business with preminent brands, leading digital capabilities and a strong innovation track record. While COVID-19 resulted in store closures and weak H1 results, improved Q3 sales growth proved that demand had been deferred not lost as the need for vision correction is structural.
