Manager Commentary

The top contributors year to date were Mastercard, Keyence and Nike.

Mastercard is a global pioneer in payment innovation and technology connecting billions of consumers, issuers, governments and businesses. The company estimates a $235 trillion market opportunity. COVID-19 is accelerating the shift toward commerce online, electronic payments, contactless cards and digital business to business payments. Keyence is a Japanese business that develops, manufactures and sells sensors for automation and inspection. Its innovation capabilities, combined with its unique, consulting based sales model should continue to drive growth as the automation trend continues. Nike announced stronger than expected Q1 2021 results. The business has returned to growth in EMEA and Greater China. Its direct to consumer business was particularly strong with the digital segment growing 83% in constant currency. Guidance for the full year was upgraded.

The top detractors year to date were Booking Holdings, Ulta Beauty and CME.

Booking Holdings, an online travel agency, has seen an unprecedented drop in hotel room nights, car rental days and flights booked due to disruption to travel caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. The company's financial strength and variable cost structure should enable it to withstand the near-term volatility and, as global travel recovers, the trend toward online bookings and integrated travel offerings should resume. Ulta Beauty, a US specialty retailer, was forced to close all of its 1,266 stores due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The stock was sold in Q1 and, in the light of positive market moves since then, remains a top detractor year-to-date. CME is the world's leading derivatives marketplace. Exceptional levels of pandemic related market volatility across asset classes in Q1 were followed by weak trading volume in Q2 and Q3 (-23%), exacerbated by the actions of the Fed and other government bodies to keep global interest rates as low and stable as possible. In spite of lower volatility in Q2 and Q3, CME's trading volumes were flat in the first nine months of 2020.
