Manager Commentary

The fund is up 20.09% year to date in Sterling terms, outperforming the MSCI World by 127 basis points. In October, the fund was down -2.15%, outperforming the MSCI World by 43 basis points.

The main contributors in October were UnitedHealth, Tiffany and MarketAxess.

UnitedHealth, a diversified health and wellness company, reported strong 3Q results and raised their full year guidance. Tiffany received a takeover approach from LVMH at $120 per share, approximately 20% above the share price. MarketAxess, a leading electronic bond trading platform operator, reported strong 3Q results that exceeded expectations, with broad-based volumes and market share gains.

The main detractors in October were Colgate-Palmolive, Ulta Beauty, Nike.

Nike announced that its CEO Mark Parker is stepping down in January, after 13 years in that role. He will be succeeded by John Donahoe, CEO of ServiceNow, who has been on Nike's board since 2014, and brings digital commerce experience from eBay and PayPal. Colgate's shares came under pressure in October in a rising interest rate environment following strong gains year-to-date. Shares of Ulta Beauty, the largest US specialty-beauty retailer, were weaker in October as L'Oréal and Estee Lauder confirmed the continued weakness in US make-up. However, secular trends remain in place and Ulta has been gaining market share with its differentiated merchandising strategy, leading to increasing awareness and a large and fast-growing loyalty membership base.
