Manager Commentary

The top contributors to performance year to date were Alphabet, Illumina and CME Group.

Alphabet reported very strong Q4 sales and profitability, with organic sales growth accelerating to 23% year on year and net income growth of over 40%. COVID-19 has accelerated the transition from traditional to digital advertising as commerce increasingly moves online; Alphabet is a primary beneficiary of this shift. The company has created an ecosystem and is entrenched in consumers' lives, with ten online assets that have over one billion users each. Illumina is the leading producer of gene sequencing equipment and consumables. Its technology has applications in a number of areas including: reproductive health, population sequencing, agricultural genomics and early cancer detection. Q4 results were better than expected, with very strong momentum going into 2021. CME Group operates the world's leading global derivatives market place with its broad based product offering, deep liquidity, price transparency and superior technology. Central bank intervention and the suppression of interest rates, in response to COVID-19, negatively impacted the need to hedge and the opportunity for trading strategies in 2020, but these trends should reverse as the pandemic is gradually contained.

The top detractors year to date were Nestlé, Colgate-Palmolive and Keyence.

Nestlé, one of the largest food and beverage companies, grew revenue on an organic basis throughout the pandemic, with guidance for acceleration in growth in 2021. The company's product portfolio is increasingly aligned with consumer focus on health and wellness. The stock has underperformed during the rotation into less defensive sectors that followed positive vaccine news in November. Colgate-Palmolive, a leader in oral care, reported strong organic growth throughout 2020, with more than 10% organic growth in their pet nutrition division. Long-term growth in oral care is supported by still-low penetration of toothpaste use and the company's strong innovation pipeline. The stock has also underperformed in the market rotation away from defensive sectors. Keyence, a consulting engineer, develops and sells a broad range of solutions for industrial automation and inspection, which should see continued adoption driven by increasingly stringent quality requirements, employee safety regulation, ageing population, miniaturisation and demand for customisation. The stock has underperformed year to date, after very strong performance in 2020.
