Manager Commentary

The top contributors to performance year to date were Alphabet, Illumina and CME Group.

Alphabet reported exceptionally strong Q1 results. Organic revenue grew 32% and operating margin expanded by more than 10 percentage points. Highlights included a reacceleration of retail momentum in search, a rebound in brand advertising and the success of Direct Response advertising at YouTube. As the owner of ten digital platforms with over one billion users each, the business should continue to benefit from broad-based digitisation. Illumina is the leader in genome sequencing technology, ahead of competition in terms of cost and accuracy. Adoption of genetic sequencing has been accelerating due to demand elasticity and an increasingly favourable regulatory environment, with an additional boost from infectious disease (Covid-19) research, diagnostics, screening and surveillance. In Q1, core markets bounced back, with most customers exceeding pre-pandemic utilisation. CME Group is the world's leading derivatives marketplace, a business with a pervasive network effect where liquidity attracts market participants. The end of the pandemic should bring a reduction in Central Bank intervention, higher interest rates and a more normal level of risk management using derivatives.

The top detractors year to date were Keyence, MarketAxess and Colgate-Palmolive.

Keyence is a Japanese business that develops, manufactures and sells a broad range of solutions for automation and inspection. Recent results exhibited a year on year recovery in Japanese and overseas sales growth, with expected continued improvement as the global economy rebounds. The company is well positioned for increasing adoption of factory automation, a trend accelerated by Covid-19. MarketAxess is strongly positioned to benefit from increasing electrification of bond trading driven by market participants' search for efficiency and best execution. After very strong share price performance in 2020, the stock has underperformed despite reporting 16% revenue growth in Q1 and continued market share gains across core credit products. Colgate-Palmolive is a leader in the global oral care market, with a strong position in petcare. The company reported 5% organic growth in Q1, driven by strong pricing and continued acceleration in e-commerce. The stock price has been under pressure year to date, in a rising bond yield environment and a rotation away from defensive companies.
