Manager Commentary

The top contributors to performance year to date were Alphabet, CME and UnitedHealth.

Alphabet reported exceptionally strong Q1 top line and bottom line numbers. Organic revenue increased 32% and the operating margin expanded over 1000 basis points to 29.7%. Highlights included a reacceleration of retail momentum in search, a rebound in brand advertising, success of Direct Response advertising at YouTube and the prospect of an AI/ML inflection at Google Cloud. CME Group is the world's leading derivatives market place. The company benefits from the network effect where traders are attracted to the market with most liquidity. The end of the pandemic should bring a reduction in Central Bank intervention, higher interest rates and more normal levels of risk management activity using derivatives. UnitedHealth Group engages in the provision of health coverage, software, data and consultancy services. Its health insurance business utilizes technology and data capabilities to help coordinate patient care, improve affordability, analyse cost trends, manage pharmacy benefits, and create a simpler consumer experience. Q1 results exceeded company expectations and resulted in management raising full year guidance.

The top detractors year to date were Keyence, MarketAxess and Nike

Keyence is a Japanese business that develops, manufactures and sells a broad range of solutions for automation and inspection. While sensors are the core product, other products include programmable logic controllers, machine vision systems and barcode readers. Recent results exhibited a clear year on year recovery in Japanese and overseas sales growth and good control resulting in an improved operating margin of 55.1%. As a pioneer of bond market electrification, MarketAxess is uniquely positioned to benefit from increasing penetration of electronic bond trading. After a very strong share price performance in 2020, the stock has suffered from a rotation to other sectors of the market. The company reported 16% Q1 revenue growth and continued share gain across core credit products. Nike is one of the world's most valuable brand names. Its competitive lead is driven by an unrivalled scale of innovation and digital expertise. Secular growth is driven by active lifestyles, heightened health awareness and an increased participation and interest in sport, fitness and wellness. Recent results were negatively impacted by short-term factors including new lockdowns in some markets and delays in container shipments in North America.
