Manager Commentary

The top contributors year to date were Alphabet, Keyence and Nike.

Alphabet has created an ecosystem entrenched in consumers' lives. The company reported a strong recovery in organic growth and margin improvement in Q3 2020. COVID-19 is accelerating the transition from traditional to digital advertising as commerce increasingly moves online; Alphabet is a primary beneficiary of this shift. Consulting engineer, Keyence, develops, manufactures and sells a broad range of solutions for automation and inspection, including sensors and machine vision systems. The company will benefit from an acceleration in industrial automation driven by COVID-19. Additional drivers include quality requirements, employee safety regulation and demand for customisation. Nike is one of the most valuable global brand names. The company has created strong competitive advantages through its leadership in innovation and digital initiatives. Increased participation in sports and interest in wellness create strong secular demand for its products. Its most recent earnings release reported organic growth across all regions with particular strength in China.

The top detractors year to date were Ulta Beauty, CME Group and Tiffany.

Ulta Beauty is a pioneer in the US beauty retail space. The position was sold in Q1 and, in the light of positive market moves since then, was a top detractor in 2020. CME operates the world's leading global derivatives market place with its broad based product offering, deep liquidity, price transparency and superior technology. Volatility and uncertainty drives trading volume growth. Central bank intervention and the suppression of interest rates, in response to COVID-19, negatively impacted the need to hedge and the opportunity for trading strategies. Tiffany is a luxury jewellery and specialty retailer. Tiffany's shareholders agreed a $135 per share takeover from LVMH in November 2019. Given the impact of COVID-19 on Tiffany's business, there was a risk LVMH would attempt to re-negotiate terms. The stock detracted from annual performance due to the sale of the position in Q2, in the early stages of the ensuing market rally.
