Manager Commentary

The fund is up 8.72% year-to-date in Sterling terms, outperforming the MSCI World by 715 basis points. 237 basis points of relative performance were added in May.

The main contributors in May were Mastercard, Alphabet and Tiffany.

Mastercard reported exceptional quarterly results. 20% organic revenue growth was driven market share gains through offering superior solutions, cross border growth and success in commercial.

Alphabet appreciated on robust earnings and investor support for the FAANG grouping.

Tiffany reported very strong quarterly results and raised full year guidance 7% same-store-sales point to success of store refreshes and product newness, and a reinvigoration of the brand. The company is the only luxury jewellery retailer with a direct sales model and has a dominant US market position.

The main detractors in May were Cognizant, Yum China and Booking Holdings.

Cognizant's quarterly earnings contained a number of disappointing items including: a downgrade in full year guidance due to a tax miscalculation; large centre money banks optimising legacy IT spend and still hesitant around digital transformation work; and high staff attrition levels.

After encouraging signs of a Pizza Hut turnaround in 2017, YUM China's Q1 2018 numbers were a clear setback. Pizza Hut, 25% of operating profit, reported a 5% fall in same-store-sales as the company struggles with pricing, brand image, store assets and delivery.

Booking gave quarterly guidance below consensus expectations. The company has less than 10% of the bookable nights of its existing partners.
