Manager Commentary

The fund is up 9.78% year-to-date, outperforming the MSCI World Index by 341 basis points. 103 basis points of excess returns were added in March.

The main contributors in March were Intertek, Essilor and Dassault Systemes. Intertek provides assurance, testing, inspection and certification services that ensure that customers' products meet quality, health, environmental, safety, and social accountability standards. The company reported better than expected full year results, exceeding on the top line, margins and free cash flow. The industry remains highly fragmented providing significant opportunity for Intertek to take market share. Essilor and Dassault benefited from increased investor support of European high quality companies.

The main detractors in March were CME, United Health and H&M. CME offers the widest range of global benchmark derivatives products across all major asset classes. The business brings buyers and sellers together and provides clearing and settlement services and regulatory reporting solutions. The stock was marked down due to weak February volumes as heightened volatility post the Trump election tailed off. United Health, the largest US healthcare insurer, suffered from the uncertain US healthcare backdrop. H&M, the global fashion retailer, reported weak trends in March sales causing investor concern over future markdowns. Given the weak sales performance year-to-date, the company's 10-15% sales growth target will be hard to achieve.

Strong organic revenue growth will help drive low double-digit earnings growth per annum over the next five years from the fund's portfolio of high quality growth companies.
